Principles of Microeconomics

Extra Exam: There will be a third midterm in addition to the two midterms and the final announced earlier. Tentative date for the exam is July 26, 2005 (Tuesday). In view of this, the distribution of weights to compute the final grades will be modified as follows:

- Final Grades – Your final grades will be computed as follows:
  - Homeworks – 10%
  - First Midterm – 20%
  - Second Midterm – 20%
  - Third Midterm – 20%
  - Final – 30%

Extra credits

You can earn extra credits by:
1. In-class participation
2. Doing well in the in-class quizzes.
3. Doing a presentation in the last week of class.

Note: Extra credits can take your letter grades up by a single point and no more. For instance, you can go from A- to A or from B+ to A- but NOT from B to A- or B+ to A.

- Presentations – This is voluntary and for extra credits only. Select an economic problem or topic that is currently in the news and use the tools taught during the course to analyze it. There should be no more than three students to a group and the presentations should last no more than ten minutes. Please let me know beforehand if you want to present and also the topic of your presentation.
