Case Study Reasoning

1. What ethical question are you trying to answer?

2. Give your first, intuitive answer to your question.

3. List three reasons for your answer.
   c.

4. List three facts that support your answer. For example, headless cats do not feel pain.

5. List one moral principle that supports your answer. For answer, we ought not to cause pain to others.

6. Using at least one factual premise you just wrote and at least one moral principle, construct a valid moral argument that leads logically to your answer. Write the factual premise. Then write the moral principle. Then write the conclusion.

7. List at least one potential objection to your argument.

8. List a response to that objection.
