

Call for Papers

We as Editors are delighted to announce the launch of a new journal titled Journal of Economic Theory and Social Development. The first issue, to be published by Nova Science New York, is scheduled to appear in 2010.

The aims and scope of the Journal are given below:

This Journal represents a pioneering attempt at the interface between economic theory and social development with reference to both developed and developing countries. In the case of the latter countries, papers developing alternative frameworks that link theory with social development are particularly welcome. It is envisaged that the Journal will be on a very large canvas dealing with a heterogeneous variety of issues, including social choice, property and human rights, law and economics, as well as environmental economics. The Journal aims at integrating economic theory with social development, for example, the theory of child labor and social development. In addition, the Journal will provide an outlet for papers on philosophical and methodological issues as well as the disjuncture between economics and other social sciences, for example, political macroeconomics. To our best knowledge, this is the only journal which covers these areas.

We are now inviting submissions of papers for possible publication in the Journal. All papers will be refereed blind. Electronic submissions should be made to any one of the following Editors.

North America Editor

Professor M. Agarwal, manmohan44@gmail.com

India Editor

Professor Anjan Mukherjee, anjan@mail.jnu.ac.in or anjan-mukherji@yahoo.com

Europe and Asia Editors

Professors Bharat Hazari and Eden Yu, bhazari@gmail.com