Supply Planning Manager

Job Description

Develop and coordinate supply/demand models which forecast three-year commercial seed production and utilization for Pioneer's seed corn product line in Latin America, Asia and Africa. Management of the volume planning process from inception through completion and review, ensuring that business needs are met, optimal supply is planned, and risk exposure is minimized. Develop and maintain the frequent compilation and distribution of appropriate management level supply/demand cost updates for seed corn (i.e. Volume Plans, Supply/Demand Updates). Participate on cross-functional teams and assist various personnel with a wide range of analytical applications.

Duties/Responsibilities

Coordinate the recommendation and development of regional commercial seed corn supply plans. Coordinate with management and cross-functional personnel to build strategic direction for the plans. Produce and distribute Volume Plans that outline risk management and production strategies for management. Identify, recommend, and develop process improvements related to demand and risk management models. Team with Supply Planning to identify and develop process improvements to increase consistency and accuracy. Manage and maintain open and trusted working relationships with many global Pioneer personnel. Serve on and/or provide assistance to various cross-functional teams within Pioneer. Provide business, financial and economic analysis to various Pioneer staff as needed.

Educational Qualifications Desired

3-5 years experience in a related area (1-2 with Masters degree) with strong agricultural background and project management skills.

Competencies and Experience Desired

High analytical skills (statistics, using large databases or Excel documents, economics, etc.) plus agricultural understanding.
